Mockup Notes

Nicole -> Gianna

- I prefer Set B over Set A
  - the B&W color scheme gave a futurist impression that responds to the topic really well
  - Retro title treatment and the background image on the first screen, and the metallic icons used later look great
  - Though I also liked these two images you used for Set A, since they show the faces of the models and place a greater emphasis on their gender identity - might be nice to bring at least one of them to the final design

- Some questions I got based on my initial observations:
  - What appears when I click the hamburger menu button in Set B?
    - If there's only one page and the links just navigate within that page, it might be better to list them directly on the navigation bar in the desktop view. That way, users don't have to take an extra step to access them.
  - The timeline items listed in the second screen - Are these clickable items? If so, will it redirect me to external sources (such as the wiki articles or full-length pdf versions of each), or will it take me to another page / show a modal that briefly describe each one?